Dear S. Jacobs,

We are still without news of my daughter since the letter which you so kindly forwarded in August. She has heard nothing either by cable or letter. But the American Embassy reports that she has seem to have left Crete. That being so, I am again taking the liberty of endorsing a letter addressed to her at Mannheim, which I trust may reach her. If you could be so kind... as I stamped and posted it, you would be adding to the obligation I have by the check you have already placed in my hands. I am leaving the envelope open, so that you may be able to place the letter in another envelope I address it yourself. If you think it would be better to go better that way.

We are having our tourists here as you may see from the newspaper, but as well I hope get through them all right.

But a terrible thing this dreadful war forced us for you in Holland; it is hardly possible to realize some of the things one reads about. You think remembrances from my wife, and many grateful thanks from us both, you Mr. dear.

S. Jacob, many ensuing years.
