Appointment of Delegates.

In order to facilitate the arrangements for the Council sessions Secretaries of affiliated Councils of Women are requested to send to Headquarters Office by May 20th a list of their delegates and alternates with an official statement of their appointment. They are also asked to provide at the same time an approved list of the names of the patrons, triennial contributors and Council members belonging to their country who intend to be present at the sessions. The final lists of delegates, etc. should reach the Headquarters Office not later than June 27th. Only those whose names appear on such a list shall be entitled to the privileges of the meeting.

Method of Voting

The responsibility for the appointment and instruction of delegates rests solely with the bodies appointing, but delegates are expected to act in strict accordance with the instructions of the Councils they represent; and on points which may incidentally arise, in accordance with the spirit of that organisation, so far as they can judge, and not as individuals. It is desirable for a delegate to be free to vote according to the opinion of the majority of the delegates on any matter on which the Councils consider that they have not sufficient information, and where they feel that discussion might materially alter the point of view.

The President or proxy President of an affiliated National Council or Council of Women when recording her vote in the case of a division, shall cast the full ten or four votes of her delegation for or against, with permission to state whether it be given on a majority or an unanimous vote. She has also the right to abstain and to be allowed to state the reason should she so desire.

10. Consideration of the following resolutions:

(a) Geographical Distribution of National Councils.
   The International Council of Women requests the Board of Officers to survey the present position and geographical distribution of the National Councils throughout the world, and to take steps towards the formation of new Councils and the strengthening of such as need assistance and generally to aim at greater uniformity of the influence of the International Council of Women in the different continents.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Great Britain.

(b) Equal Rights between men and women.
   Whereas, the International Council of Women has affirmed its profound conviction that it is only by permitting and encouraging women to play a full and responsible part in the political, economic and intellectual life of their country that the civilisation and the prosperity of future generations may be developed on a sound basis of general understanding and enlightenment, the sanctity of the home preserved and moral standards be prevented from sinking:
Be it resolved that
The International Council of Women urge its member organisations to work for the equality of rights between men and women in all fields.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of the United States.

(c) Length of Resolutions from National Councils.

That resolutions sent by affiliated Councils to the International Council of Women shall not be accepted unless framed in concise terms, within the limit of 100 words.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Australia.

In view of the importance of the development of international efforts for safeguarding moral values in the field of Intellectual Co-operation,
The International Council of Women noting with satisfaction the resolution adopted by the Assembly of the League of Nations on September 30th 1937 which recommends to all Governments a draft International Act which tends to provide new means of action for the Intellectual Co-operation Organisation of the League of Nations, invites its affiliated Councils to approach their respective Governments without delay so that they may give a favorable answer to the International Act which has been submitted to them in conformity with the Assembly's resolution of September 30th 1937.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Belgium.

11. Report of the Public Health Committee and consideration of the following resolution:

Increased opportunities for physical instruction.

The International Council of Women is in full sympathy with the movement apparent to-day in many countries in favour of increased opportunities for physical instruction and healthful recreation — believing that such elements are essential to any sound conception of education.
They desire however to place on record their conviction that undue emphasis should not be laid on any single element, but that physical, recreational and aesthetic training should be pursued as integral parts of a full development which will direct social evolution towards a higher and more spiritual type of civilisation.
They further consider that where possible medical supervision should be provided, in order to prevent undue strain from physical training, in the case of any particular individual.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Great Britain.

12. Report of the Child Welfare Committee and consideration of the following resolutions:

(a) Co-ordination of efforts of Institutions of Assistance.

The International Council of Women realising that in the field of Protection of Children and Adolescents the efforts of the various institutions of assistance very often lack co-ordination, begs its affiliated Councils to undertake in their respective countries an inquiry into the various aspects of the question in order to draw the attention of the public to the matter with a view to finding means to co-ordinate existing efforts.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Poland.
(b) Help to Children victims of war and civil disturbances.

Considering the necessity of help being given to children who in various countries have been victims of war and civil disturbances;
Considering that it is the duty of women mutually to support one another in relief-work;
The International Council of Women urges its affiliated Councils to take all possible part either alone or together with other organisations such as the Save the Children International Union or the International Red Cross, in the relief-work against famine and mental depression among children in countries which are at war and among refugee children.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Sweden.

14. Report of the Equal Moral Standard Committee and consideration of the following resolutions:

(a) Application of the principle of a high and equal moral standard for both sexes.

The International Council of Women urges upon its affiliated Councils the necessity of organising or of intensifying educational propaganda in their respective countries with the object of arousing the interest of the public and of the government in favour of the complete application of the principle of a high and equal moral standard for both sexes, by abolitionist methods, and of dealing with this not only from the point of view of the suppression of all regulation of prostitution but also by emphasising the fact that more satisfactory results are likely to be obtained by schemes combining voluntary treatment of venereal disease with adequate social services than by obligatory treatment.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Great Britain.

AMENDMENTS.

To delete the last four words, viz: «than by obligatory treatment».

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Australia.

That the last four lines read as follows: «but also by emphasising the fact that satisfactory results are most likely to be obtained by easily obtainable, inexpensive or free treatment of venereal disease, combined with adequate social service».

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Denmark.

(b) Ratification and Application of International Conventions on the suppression of Traffic in Women and Children.

The International Council of Women impresses upon its affiliated Councils the necessity of organising, with the means at their disposal in their respective countries, systematic propaganda in order to make known the work undertaken by the League of Nations' Advisory Committee on Social Questions, with the object of obtaining in each country the ratification and the application of International Conventions on the suppression of Traffic in Women and Children.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Great Britain.

(c) Psychiatric examination of Prostitutes.

In view of the fact that in Denmark recent investigations have shown that a very great percentage of prostitutes are of sub-normal intelligence, with hereditary abnormalities, and unhappy home conditions,
The International Council of Women urges that such women should be psychiatrically examined and that support should be given and educational and protective measures applied, at the earliest possible moment, in place of fines and imprisonment.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Denmark.

AMENDMENT.

That the second paragraph read as follows:
«The International Council of Women urges that such women should, after conviction for any offence, be psychiatrically examined and then offered a free choice between educational protective measures in place of fines and imprisonment.»

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Great Britain.

15. Report of the Laws Committee and consideration of the following resolution:

Maintenance of the legitimate or illegitimate Child.

The International Council of Women urges its affiliated Councils to work for legislation to the following ends:
That in order to secure adequate maintenance for a child, whether legitimate or illegitimate, which is under the guardianship of one parent only, maintenance may be paid in advance by the public authority if the guardian of the child is destitute.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Denmark.

16. Report of the Trades and Professions Committee and consideration of the following resolutions:

The International Council of Women strongly supports the action of the International Labour Conference on behalf of domestic servants and expresses the hope that their conditions of employment will in the near future form the subject of regulation. It strongly urges its affiliated Councils to support the initiative of the International Labour Office in their respective countries by pressing for appropriate legislation and by exercising their influence on public opinion in favour of such measures.

Proposed by the Board of Officers.

Seeing that the great number of women and children occupied in agriculture have been up to the present, without any effective regulation of their conditions of work and that, in comparison with industrial workers, they therefore constitute an unprotected social group, the International Council of Women invites all the affiliated Councils to ask their respective Governments to extend to agricultural workers the protective legislation from which industrial workers benefit, and, in particular, to extend inspection to cover agricultural employments.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Poland.

AMENDMENT.

That the following sentence be added:
«In view of the policy laid down by the International Council of Women at Dubrovnik and in Paris, it being understood that any protective legislation should apply equally to men and women.»

17. Report of the Migration Committee and consideration of the following resolutions:

(a) Girls visiting foreign countries to study the Language on mutual terms.

The International Council of Women invites its affiliated Councils to study existing conditions with regard to girls visiting foreign countries to study the language, on mutual terms (au pair) and to endeavour, through the authorities (Home Offices, Ministries of Labour, etc.) and with the help of private organisations, to increase facilities for such exchanges.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of the Netherlands.

AMENDMENT.

To delete the last 3 words and to substitute the words «for the entrance into other countries of these girls».

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Great Britain.

(b) Exchange of young women workers.

The International Council of Women invites its affiliated Councils to study the question of the exchange of young women workers by means of reciprocal conventions with a view to education and mutual understanding.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Belgium.

(c) Refugees and stateless persons.

The International Council of Women deeply moved by the distress of the refugees and stateless persons for whom assistance, the right to work and possibilities of rehabilitation should be assured; Alive to the difficulties which their presence creates for certain nations; and Considering that this problem can only be solved internationally; Expresses the wish:

1. that the humanitarian work carried out up to now by the Nansen Committee be maintained and extended;

2. that the Convention concerning the International Statute of Refugees of October 28th 1933, be ratified;

The International Council of Women further urges its affiliated Councils to take the necessary steps in order to obtain from the competent authorities in their respective countries the realisation of these two points.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Belgium.

19. Report of the Peace and Arbitration Committee and consideration of the following resolutions:

(a) Collaboration between the Nations in favour of Peace.

The International Council of Women
Considering the increasing gravity of world affairs, wishes to re-affirm its wholehearted opposition to war and its unswerving faith in the necessity for international collaboration with a view to the peaceful solution of the problems of the present hour.

Considering that armed conflicts in whatever section of the world they may break out, constitute a threat to the well-being of every nation;

Considering that modern warfare involves directly the whole population of a country and that each armed conflict is more savage and more barbarous than its predecessor, causing immeasurable suffering even to non-combatants;

Considering that in all domains: economic, financial, political and moral, interdependence exists between the nations, however they may differ as to regime or government, and that these differences should not prevent a common action in the interests of peace;

Considering that the sanctity of international obligations is the most effective safeguard of collective security and that international laws should be observed, improved and strengthened;

Considering that modification of existing treaties, when necessary, should be accomplished through pacific means;
Considering that for the general public, too often ignorant of economic questions, these sometimes take the aspect of unsurmountable difficulties to which war appears a remedy, that many conflicts in the world have an economic cause and that energetic efforts to bring about greater economic justice in the life of the nations, should be supported;
Considering that the armaments' race constitutes for the world a terrific financial burden and that there will be no real and lasting Peace without limitation and reduction of armaments;
The International Council of Women
Appeals to the vigilance of Governments urging them to do whatever may be necessary to restore confidence in the League of Nations and international engagements;
Has confidence in its affiliated Councils which, in their respective countries, represent women of different shades of public opinion and begs them to support their Governments in the accomplishment of their duty towards the cause of Peace and International Solidarity;
Appeals to women of all countries to promote peace and collaboration between the nations of the world by means of their united efforts, so as to prevent civilisation from falling into political, economic, and moral chaos.

_proposed by the N. C. W. of France and Belgium, seconded by the N. C. W. of Sweden._

AMENDMENT.

That the paragraphs 7 and 9 read as follows:
Considering that for the general public too often ignorant of economic questions, these sometimes take the aspect of unsurmountable difficulties to which war appears a remedy, _that the pressure of economic distress counteracts the will to peace_, that many conflicts in the world have an economic cause and that the support of energetic efforts to bring about greater justice in the life of the nations is imperative;

Appeals to the vigilance of Governments urging them to do their utmost to obtain a reorganisation of the League of Nations which will restore confidence in international engagements.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Austria.

(b) Collective Influence of Women for Peace.

Whereas war and the threat of war are creating alarming conditions in various parts of the world today, and
Whereas hostilities in any section of the world constitute a threat to the peace and well-being of every nation; therefore be it resolved:
That even in the face of discord and of open warfare, we appeal to women not to lose their vision or courage but that they exert their collective influence on behalf of the forces that make for peace, justice and harmony among the nations of the world.
And be it further resolved that we hold to the following principles as necessary steps toward world peace:

(a) We continue to refuse acceptance of the doctrine of physical force as an answer to conflicting interests and opinions among the nations.
(b) We advocate peaceful negotiations looking toward the settlement of any and all international disputes.
(c) We insist that "sanctity of treaties" and of all international obligations is the underlying and essential cornerstone of all international negotiations.
(d) Modification of existing treaties, while often needful, should be accomplished only through mutual conference and agreement.
(e) International Law should be observed, improved and strengthened rather than disregarded.

(f) Recognising the economic basis for much of the conflicts in the world, we support all efforts toward a greater degree of economic justice in the life of nations.

(g) In view of the present armament race, we advocate limitation and reduction of armaments by mutual agreement — in order to relieve the world of the terrific financial burden and the threat to world peace, inherent in excessive armaments.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of the U. S. A.

(c) Technique of Modern Warfare and Abolition of Air Bombing.

While deploiring warfare in all its forms, the International Council of Women draws special attention to the fact that the technique of modern warfare has developed in such a manner as to involve directly the whole population of a country, and calls upon its constituent Councils to do their utmost to influence their Governments to seek for peaceful means of solving difficulties and so diminish the grave risk of the wholesale destruction of existing civilisations and populations.

The International Council of Women welcomes the efforts of certain Governments to re-open the discussion of the question of the bombing of civil populations from the air, with a view to a general international agreement. The Council offers the fullest support to these developments, but urges that every endeavour be made to reach a solution on the only ultimately effective basis — which is the abolition of all air bombing.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Great Britain.

20. Report of the Education Committee and consideration of the following resolutions:

(a) Economic, physical and moral situation of girls.

The International Council of Women urges its National Councils to inquire into the economic, physical and moral situation of girls of the ages of between 14 and 16 years belonging to the poorer classes in town and country and begs them to endeavour that not only continuation courses be provided for these girls, but that they be also given such physical care and education as will enable them to become the mothers of healthy and well brought-up children.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Austria.

AMENDMENT.

That in line 4 the words «the poorer classes» be deleted and the following words substituted: «families who cannot afford to give them a further education».

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Poland.

(b) Pre-school Education.

Whereas, the little children of all countries, representing the nations of to-morrow, are, at the beginning of life, equally innocent, equally peaceable and equally unbiased in their appreciation of the beautiful and the good, and

Whereas, lifelong attitudes and habits are largely formed as a result of environmental influence during the pre-school years, therefore be it resolved that The International Council of Women recommend to its constituent members that they work untiringly to have pre-school education of the highest type provided for all children.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of the U. S. A.
AMENDMENT.

To delete the first paragraph from «Whereas... and the good, and».

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Belgium, Australia and Poland.

(c) Teaching of economic Problems.

In view of the fact that the general public is often ignorant of the great economic problems which play such an important part in the world today, the International Council of Women expresses the wish that the members of the teaching profession be given every facility to impart to their pupils the broad outlines of economic principles and an idea of the interdependence of nations, such teaching to be made compulsory.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of Austria.

21. Report of the Cinema Committee and consideration of the following resolutions:

(a) Collaboration between Film Producers and Educators.

Whereas, the International Council of Women deplores films of baneful influence which are produced and shown throughout the world, the International Council of Women wishes to express its commendation of films which carry an important social message, deal accurately and faithfully with incidents of historic import, or otherwise tend to raise cultural standards. The International Council of Women also wishes to commend the collaboration between producers of commercial pictures and educators in investigating the educational possibilities of films and in utilising effectively the social values which exist in present day films in training both youth and adults to an appreciation of the true import of human relations problems and hopes that this practice may become more general. Recognising that the motion picture, rightly used, constitutes one of the most valuable media for promoting international and inter-racial tolerance and understanding, the International Council of Women urges that its member Councils do the utmost in their power not only to encourage the production of pictures calculated to serve these ends, but also the dissemination of information about them, so that they may achieve their widest usefulness as a medium of international amity.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of the U. S. A.

(b) Cinema, means of furthering knowledge.

Whereas, the Cinema admittedly takes a position of primary importance in modern life and through its artistic rendering and commercial development must be considered as a valuable medium for the exchange of ideas between countries and an educational element of acknowledged value, the International Council of Women expresses the wish:

A. that the League of Nations Convention for the international circulation of educational films be ratified and put into practice; that the work of the International Institute of Educational Cinematography of the League of Nations which up to December 31st 1937 had its headquarters in Rome, be taken up again without delay.

B. that the National Councils do their utmost that certain films which, owing to their specifically national character are unsuitable for exchange on a commercial basis — if they are typical and worthwhile international circulation — be shown abroad through the legations or consulates of their respective countries or through cultural societies at specially organised performances.

C. that the Cinema Committees of the affiliated Councils in the various countries favour the formation of clubs with a high and disinterested object and a thorough understanding of the cinema and its artistic, educational and international value, and commend the collaboration between film producers and educators, experts and intellectuals for the realisation of films of a high intellectual and moral character.

D. that the Cinema Committees of the affiliated Councils endeavour to promote the use of cinema in the schools as a means of furthering knowledge and also urge that cinema courses be organised which will give the younger generations an appreciation of this new art as a means of forming a more enlightened public opinion.

E. that the Cinema Committees of the affiliated Councils study the question of films of reduced size in order to promote their utilisation, thus furthering a larger circulation of documentary, educational and scientific reels.

F. that the Cinema Committees of the affiliated Councils make propaganda for documentary and educational films shown in the form of short interesting and attractive reels in halls for all classes and ages and where everyone may be kept abreast of modern developments through the cinema.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of France and Belgium.

24. Report of the Broadcasting Committee and consideration of the following resolutions:

(a) Women's Broadcasts.

Whereas, the International Council of Women views broadcasting by women as of particular interest and is persuaded that such broadcasts are of especial value in raising the cultural level of women, in defending her rights, combating social evils and in the promotion of peace,

26

The International Council of Women urges that suitably qualified women in all countries should take an active interest in broadcasting both through organisation and by participation, thus widening the scope of women's activities by means of the wireless. It recommends further that efforts should be made to induce listeners to form groups for following radio programmes and that they should send suggestions and criticisms concerning them to the proper authorities.

Proposed by the N. C. W. of France.
